Case Studies

- A client placed an order worth millions of Baht with a third party supplier. The client received an email from supplier requesting payment be made into a different bank account, which was done. Orion examined the emails between both parties and was able to prove that someone had gained unauthorized access to the suppliers email system to send the email, helping to prove that our client was not responsible for the loss of money.
- A senior sales manager had taken a confidential database of 1000s of customers and was about to leave the client's company to set up a rival business. The client reacted swiftly and Orion helped prove a single illegal copy of the database had been made onto a thumbdrive. We then secured the stolen data from the sales manager, preventing potential large scale customer losses due to unethical acquisition and theft of confidential data.
- Forensic examination of computers and mobile phones proved a middle level manager had colluded with a third party supplier for personal financial gain. The forensic evidence that was found resulted in the manager agreeing to repay 1.6 million Baht to the company without the need for court action.
